

STEEPLETOP
AUSTERLITZ, NEW YORK

April 22, 1960

Corrinne Sawyer
Camden Public Library
Camden, Maine.

Dear Corrinne:

I thought this would be a pleasant item for Camden's library to have with its Millay books etc.

I wish you might have been present on that wonderful occasion,--it was a thrilling theatre experience, quite outside its being of very special interest for me, as you would know.

I doubt if the Camden Herald, with its club meetings to keep straight and all the local excitements to record, would give the New York critics' accounts of the Millay-Stickney triumph an interested glance. I sent them a picture of the unveiling of the Millay marker, placed by N.Y. State at the foot of the Austerlitz road to Steepletop as part of the Hudson, Champlain Celebration last year and a copy of the address delivered in her honor, but nothing ever appeared in Camden's local sheet concerning this event.

I wonder if news of Robert Farr travels to Camden. The last I heard he was still in jail in Hollywood,-- something to do with typewriters he didn't own. I wish he's send back the Millay items he failed to return (as promised) to the Whitehall exhibit a couple of years ago.

But back to a pleasanter subject: you will be interested to know that Dorothy Stickney will be playing A LOVELY LIGHT in London in June. She will be playing throughout the country next fall and will maybe come close enough for ~~max~~ Vincent's Camden friends to hear her without too much traveling. I hope so.

Love ever,

Steepletop
Austerlitz, New York

Corrinne Sawyer April 22, 1960
Camden Public Library
Camden, Maine.

Dear Corrinne:

I thought this would be a pleasant item for Camden's library to have with its Millay books etc.

I wish you might have been present on that wonderful occasion, — it was a thrilling theatre experience, quite outside its being of very special interest for me, as you would know.

I doubt if the Camden Herald, with its club meetings to keep straight and all the local excitements to record, would give the New York critics' accounts of the Millay-Stickney triumph an interested glance. I sent them a picture of the unveiling of the Millay marker, placed by N.Y. State at the foot of the Austerlitz road to Steepletop as part of the Hudson, Champlain Celebration last year and a copy of the address delivered in her honor, but nothing ever appeared in Camden's local sheet concerning this event.

I wonder if news of Robert Farr travels to Camden. The last I heard he was still in jail in Hollywood, — something to do with typewriters he didn't own. I wish he's send back the Millay items he failed to return (as promised) to the Whitehall exhibit a couple of years ago.

But back to a pleasanter subject: you will be interested to know that Dorothy Stickney will be playing A LOVELY LIGHT in London in June. She will be playing throughout the country next fall and will maybe come close enough for Vincent's Camden friends to hear her without too much traveling. I hope so.

Love ever,

Norma

Contributed to Maine Memory Network by Camden Public Library

MMN # 72838

Date: April 22, 1960

Description: Norma Millay letter to Corrinne Sawyer about donations of Edna St. Vincent Millay materials to Sawyer's Millay collection at the Camden library.