

Letter - Feb. 27, 1913 - from Barnard College
Dear Old Thing - It was just as if you had come to see me, when I opened the package my birthday. Every bit of it was so like yourself - to think of it and then to set out at once and to do it, and to do it in just that way - with blue because you hate it, only I don't hate that blue, it's a beauty ful shade.
If only more people understood the difference between a beautiful embroidered one and a beautiful ~~looked~~ embroidered one with a note underneath:
All the girls here at the Training Dom (or course)
- I am still with Miss Dow - thought it was the sweetest thing - and ^{the} cutest idea - and I showed them the tag on the back and explained them, and they're all crazy about my little cap too, you'll have quite a reputation you old darling

Description: Letter of Edna St. Vincent Millay to Corrine Sawyer thanking her for her birthday present.

My birthday surprise plan (wasn't it a lovely one) was quite successful - I think I had thirty-three Cards and eighteen letters, something like that

O Corinne I'm meeting such wonderful people and doing such wonderful things.
You must make the girls - Norma & Kathleen, tell you things. I do take time to write everything home, or most everything, but that's all I can do. You ~~would have been~~ who have been here, must know what it means not to have a minute to call your own.
New York is different. It does just take the time.
But when I get home in the spring, Oh! When I do
I am studying hard at Columbia, (Barnard is really the girls part) I have an awfully fascinating French course w/ a young Frenchman You are getting so I understand him almost all the time - we talk almost always in French in class - at least he does - and we think we do.

you remember Miss Rittenhouse? the P. S. of a secretary - she was, you know. I take tea with her tomorrow afternoon - Isn't Riverside Drive lovely? It is very near Barnard and I go walking there often. Miss R - lives on Morningside Drive - just opposite - Please remember me to her & thank her for her card
Lots of love
Vincent
