

T.A.G. Feedback Protocol

T- Tell one thing that is working well in the composition.

Please remember to use language related to the elements and principles of art.

Example- “the shape of your composition is very accurate, I can recognize all the different features of your sculpture/insect.”

<ul style="list-style-type: none">❑ Line: A mark with length and direction(s). Lines can create an outline or contour. Lines are often used to define space or direct the movement of your eyes.❑ Shape: refers to a closed space made when a line connects to itself.❑ Form: refers to a shape that is or appears to be three dimensional, having weight, width and depth.❑ Texture a surface quality that can be seen (simulated texture) or felt (actual texture).❑ The visible spectrum of reflected light. Relationships might include complementary and analogous.❑ Space: The area around, above, below and within an artwork. ---two-dimensional (2D) or three dimensional (3D) ---flat, shallow, or deep ---open or closed ---positive (subject) or negative (background)❑ Value: The lightness or darkness of a color.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">❑ Balance: The arrangements of elements in art that create a sense of visual stability.❑ Emphasis: The importance given to certain objects in an artwork. Where your eye goes first.❑ Proportion: The relationship of the parts of an artwork to the whole, or of one part to another. Related to size or scale.❑ Movement/Rhythm: Movement refers to how elements are arranged to draw your eye through an artwork or imply a sense of motion.❑ Pattern: An element that is repeated in a planned way to create rhythm or unity.❑ Variety: Using the art elements to create differences in an artwork that add visual interest.❑ Unity: A successful combination of art elements that creates a sense of wholeness and visual completion in an artwork.
--	--

A- Ask a question.

Example- “what was your inspiration?” “How did you create this effect?”

G- Give a constructive suggestion/ feedback.

Examples- “The detail you included in this area is so strong, I think it would be nice to see this repeated again”.