Dear Brother Burt;
I am a little late this year with your birthday letter, although I did not forget it, only did not quite get to it, but hope it is not too late to offer congratulations and best wishes.
I hope this will find you and all the others in good health, as we are all at present, though at this very moment, Henry is at the Drs. for medicine for his aching back, and for something to tone him up, as he is all run down, but he needs a month of entire rest and change, more than anything else. Allie has been having a bad cold, and Maude an attack of the grippe. I think at one time last week they were both sick in bed.

You know Allie is choir director and all last year he did not miss a single Sabbath. I think he is very much liked in the church. Charlie Connor is here just at present, he has been here twice before this winter and made short stays. I think he is quite a help in the singing, although I have not been able to attend church or prayer meeting at all this winter.

Henry has been playing on the piano and one of his selections was "The summer land of song", it made me think of you, and how we used to sing it together. I received the papers you sent with the picture of your new pastor, and think him a nice, smart looking man am glad for you and the church.

In a letter from Jessie Ross Emery, which I received the other day, she sent some chips from Lieut. Pearry's ship now being built at Verona. She says it is a very strong, immense vessel and they expect to launch it the last of March. I have had a letter from Coz. Josie Sandford lately in which she said Elliott was sick with liver and heart trouble. I do not hear from them very often as Josie does not write so much as Aunt Clara used to. I find that letter writing is more of a task to me than it used to be, but it is mostly in getting at it. I thought I would write you that Grace is to announce her engagement to Linwood Story Durgin, this coming week. She is to give a chafing-dish luncheon on Thursday in honor of Bessie Clifford of Bath, who is to be her guest for the day, and has invited most all of her girl friends for the afternoon. Her diamond is small but very nice, a perfect one, as Col. Osgood picked it out himself, in New York this last week, for Linwood, he thinks a great deal of him. They will not be married for some time yet. Julian Story, the author, and husband of Emma Eames is a distant cousin of Linwood's and Judge Story was also a relative.

Linwood is a great book-worm, he delights especially in History, and always has from a child. He read some great History, I don't remember which one, when only eight or nine years old. Doesn't that make you think of Arthur? We think he is a very fine young man and we have known him for several years. I am sorry that his health is not better, for he is not at all strong, though he has always been more or less of an athlete, but a young man is so handicapped with poor health, but he is everything to Grace, and, of course, that is all right. Well, I have spun out quite a long letter as I generally do when I get started. I hope Annie is as well as usual, also Clara and Winthrop.

We enjoyed Harold's visit home at Christmas, though the time seemed very short, as no doubt it does to you when Nelli and Arthur come home.

I expect Ned is doing finely, as he always does and will make his mark in life. We all send love to you all.

Good Night and best wishes,
