

House of Rep -
June 10 1831

Mr Dear George
There being nothing before the House at this moment I seize upon the opportunity to answer yours of the 7th inst. which was sent in last evening - In primis I am under a thousand obligations for the kind interest you continue to take in my good fortune. My election was unexpected at least by me. I knew that there were other men deservedly popular, who were pushing for the Speakers chair - I was not aware of the fact that my friends were making any very decided efforts

Description: Letter to George Washington Pierce from Franklin Pierce

And when the State of the ballot was declared you can hardly imagine with what surprise it came upon me nor can you conceive of the thousand contending emotions that struggled within me for the moment - I however found my way to the Chair - and have the vanity to believe that its duties have thus far been acceptably performed - No one circumstance could give me so much pleasure as to see you here during the session - you say it has always seemed to you that we were destined to run a somewhat similar course. Nothing nothing George could ^{be a source of higher} pride than the belief ~~that~~ if I could properly indulge it that I may be worthy to enjoy a reputation like that which you are so rapidly building up for yourself - You say nothing Miss Longfellow I hope her health is restored Let me hear from you often — In great haste

I am as ever

PS It is possible I may visit the White Hills in July in that event I shall give myself the pleasure of seeing you at Portland. What in the Devil are you doing with Pru Allen?
