

My Dear Wife
Friday afternoon December 16th 1825
Do not be alarmed, because I do not return at the time which I proposed when I left you, I think that Daniel is considerable better than he was when we left him last week, the Doctors have been to see him to day they consider the prospect of his recovery favourable but he remains very weak, and I think that he is more sensible of his weakness than he was when you saw him last, I should have returned home to day, but Daniel seems very desirous to have me stay with him, he seems as though he could not consent to have me leave him and he is so very weak, I am very loth to do anything that will give him uneasiness, when the Doctor found how anxious Daniel was to have me stay with him they advised me to stay, they thought that if I should leave him, and he should worry about it, that it would be likely to Injure him, for the foregoing reasons, I have concluded to stay untill next week, but I hope to come home the first of the week, if you had been here your self I think you would not leave him under such circumstances, but I think I shall come soon —
From your affectionate Husband Josiah Pierce

My Dear Wife _____ Friday afternoon December 16th 1825
Do not be alarmed, because I do not return at the time which I proposed when I left you, I think that Daniel is considerable better than he was when we left him last week, the Doctors have been to see him to day they consider the prospect of his recovery favourable but he remains very weak, and I think that he is more sensible of his weakness than he was when you saw him last. I should have returned home to day, but Daniel seems very desirous to have me stay with him, he seems as though he could not consent to have me leave him and he is so very weak. I am very loth to do anything that will give him uneasiness, when the Doctor found how anxious Daniel was to have me stay with him they advised me to stay, they thought that if I should leave him, and he should worry about it, that it would be likely to Injure him. for the foregoing reasons, I have concluded to stay untill next week. but I hope to come home the first of the week. if you had been here your self I think you would not leave him under such — circumstances, but I think I shall come soon — —

From your affectionate Husband
Josiah Pierce