

Baldwin July 6th.
Dear Little Anne,
will perhaps like to know what the old Maid is doing here alone? Having hardly recovered from the fatigue of the celebration of our National Independence, I am just doing ^{nothing} at all.
You will I presume be much gratified with an account of my celebration Being Solus I chose myself President, and having all my Patriotic feelings aroused on the occasion, the Day was celebrated in the most appropriate manner. Our wise rulers having thrown aside the Constitution I suppose it would be highly improper to read the declaration of Independence therefore wisely substituted the letters of Major Jack Downing, which were very edifying and highly acceptable to the audience, (myself) After the exercises of the day were over, partook of an elegant dinner of green Peas, Drank a toast in a cup of strong Tea To Major Jack Downing
The only true Patriot left to this once Patriotic Country. May he not only fill the Presidential Chair; but combine in himself with honors of Congress, also be Governor, counsel and Legislature of every state in the Union Siffice it to say that the greatest harmony and unanimity of feeling prevailed through out the day.

I was happy to learn that your advertisement was duly attended to, and that you are again "restored to the bosom of your family." The day we parted was an unusually Propitious one, my Chaire was harnessed and I just ready to step into it, when Lo! the dress maker, of whom I had been in search all the morning made her appearance, off went shawl and calash, and that poor dress, which has been so long endeavouring to be made at length felt the shears, and needle. Well this was not all my good fortune on this fortunate day, for about 10 o'clock, who should arrive but my own dear Elizabeth, In the afternoon I had a lonely, but not unpleasant ride home, arrived in safety at the old mansion, found Mother in as good health as we left her, if she is now with you do give her my love, and say to her that we are all well and doing well.

My letter to you have ever been commenced by soliciting some favor, and then filling my sheet with that most interesting subject myself. By way of variety I shall, as many say begin at the wrong 'end.' but lest without such an appendage you might suspect this was not the 'real Lemon Pane' shall close with requesting you would be so pretty and so clever as to procure me some beads and bead needles for Elizabeth to learn to do bead work.

I am now quite Sortin you will suppose this can be from no other than your sister Hannah.

My best love to dear George.
