

Brunswick March 1st

After repeated efforts to thaw my ink I have so far succeeded as to be able to drain out one penful, with which, if I can get more, I must write my whole letter, so you see it is quite uncertain what will as yet be the length of the letter — You have probably heard all the particulars of the fire so unfortunate to the Misses Tappans, & to several of the students who roomed there, the latter of which lost all their furniture & books. The fire caught, as is thought, by a coal snapping into a pan of fat which they left on the hearth, the back part of the house was all in a blaze before they discovered it. It must have been very terrible to them to be awakened from their sleep at midnight by the crackling of the flames, there was no man in the house — Arria was so frightened that she ran over to Proff. Cleverlands barefooted which is as far as from our house to Capt. Bacheldors — My chum arrived here the day after I did in good health & very much pleased with school-keeping

This term is 14 weeks long & the hardest term in the year, or at least the most unpleasant. Many & various have been the Snow Storms. I fear there will come so much more of the sunshine of April & May will assail it in vain

Description: GW. Pierce letter about college life

A week ago to night I watched with Badger who has had the measles I found rather pleasant than otherwise to sit up all night I had my books with me & got all my lessons for the next days for my patient was remarkable civil & slept soundly all night except when I waked him to give his medicine; which was once in two hours —

Dr Smith returned yesterday I have not seen him yet. I wish you would write & tell me all about things in Baldwin & where & how Mr Herd is & if you see him again ask him to write me. Give my love to all the family tell Father & Mother I have made four dishes of chocolate in my new ^{and} if you will never find out that picture & I must write it in plain letters Coffee Pot Great & advantageous as the acquisition is I all most wish I had never possessed it it excites so much jealousy among the students that I hourly fear I shall be assassinated ^{and} robbed of that which I hold so dear —

Dear sister believe me your affectionate Brother
