Description: John P. Sheahan on commission as lieutenant was all taken back and did not know what to say mad enough, so night before last he got so mad that he ordered me taken to the guard house, and in the morning the Adjutant happened over to the guard house and he asked if I was under guard I told him I was he came up and saw the Capt and asked him what he meant having me under guard, the Capt told him he intended to have me court-martialed the Adjutant - I asked him what for and says he for a good many things, now say the Adjutant - if you want to ruin your reputation just -

you court-martail Sheahan we all know what you are trying for but he has got too many friends now the best thing you can do is to let him out of that guard house. The orders came down in a few moments and I was set free. They laugh about Myrick being mad, all through the regiment - all the boys that I know are pleased to learn my good fortune. I have no doubt - but I shall make the men in my Co like me well. My Commission came yesterday. I have sent in an application for discharge I cannot be able to leave here under a
