

Burwash
Maine

[Image]

In
The Land of remembered Vacations

Contributed to Maine Memory Network by Lubec Historical Society

MMN # 78682

Date: ca. 1927

Description: A brochure promoting lots for sale in Washington County.

GET the MAINE HABIT

This Summer

WHERE to go for a summer vacation will never bother you after a summer in Maine. The days or weeks you spend on the Maine coast or inland among her woods and mountains, her tranquil lakes and silver streams will remain pleasant memories.

In Maine summer is genial. Days are pleasantly warm and you can enjoy to the full every sort of outdoor recreation—golf, tennis, yachting, motor-boating, swimming, canoeing, fishing, hiking, mountain climbing and motoring.

Inigorating sea breezes and balsam-scented forest air put spring into the step and color into the cheeks. Cool nights, after days of glorious sport, bring sound sleep. You build up stores of strength and endurance for the hurly-burly of the year's grind. Maine is a repair shop for jangled nerves, where a million city-tired people find recreations to suit every mood, inclination and need. For rest, relaxation or rebuilding, for active sport and social diversions, come to Maine. Get the Maine habit.

Live in the "big woods" that Theodore Roosevelt loved. Whip the waters where Grover Cleveland and Joseph Jefferson cast their feathered lures. Play beside the ocean in its many moods. Loiter through Maine's hill country threaded by thousands of rivers and streams, and gemmed with forest-bowered lakes and ponds.

In Maine beauty lies in wait at every turn in the road, on every side. Comfortable motor roads follow the most picturesque seacoast on the Atlantic and lead through the heart of Maine's forests.

BURWASH typifies everything that is Maine. Lakes, mountain, streams and forests—you can find them all in Burwash. Added to this is easy accessibility, congenial neighbors and a general atmosphere that one finds only in the ideal summer retreat.

Burwash, a tract of land comprising five thousand acres, is in Washington County, southeastern Maine, and lies between the towns of Wesley and Northfield, two and one-half miles south of Wesley and three miles north of Northfield. Machias, a thriving city on the Atlantic Ocean and a railroad terminus connecting with all points in the United States and Canada, is only eleven miles from the summer colony over a splendid highway. This highway borders Burwash and connects directly with St. Stephen, New Brunswick, Canada, which is nineteen miles distant, or a drive of about forty-five minutes by automobile. Calais, Eastport, Campobello and other famous resorts are but a few miles from Burwash.

Boasting of a heavy growth of wood and timber over the greater part of the property, with two lakes, one two miles long and half a mile wide, and with a mountain rising over land that is from fifty to more than two hundred feet high, Burwash is the summer paradise supreme. Fresh water trout and perch beckon the angler. Moose, deer and partridge call the hunter, while the lover of boating, canoeing and swimming will find in the two fine lakes on the property bodies of crystal water ideal for the purpose. Hundreds of springs, bubbling the purest of soft water, springs that never freeze, are on Burwash. And

GET the MAINE HABIT

This Summer

Where to go for a summer vacation will never bother you after a summer in Maine. The days or weeks you spend on the Maine coast or inland among her woods and mountains, her tranquil lakes and silver streams will remain pleasant memories.

In Maine summer is genial. Days are pleasantly warm and you can enjoy to the full every sort of outdoor recreations—gold, tennis, yachting, motor-boating, swimming, canoeing, fishing, hiking, mountain climbing and motoring.

Inigorating sea breezes and balsam-scented forest air put spring into the step and color into the cheeks. Cool nights, after days of glorious sport, bring sound sleep. You build up stores of strength and endurance for the hurly-burly of the years grind. Maine is a repair shop for jangled nerves, where a million city-tired people find recreations to suit every mood, inclination and need. For rest, relaxation or rebuilding for active sport and social diversions, Come to Maine. Get the Maine habit.

Live in the "big woods" that Theodore Roosevelt loved. Whip the water where Grover Cleveland and Joseph Jefferson cast their feathered lures. Play beside the ocean in its many moods. Loiter through Maine's hill country threaded by Thousands of rivers and streams, and gemmed with forest-bowered lakes and ponds.

In Maine beauty lies in wait at every turn in the road, on every side. Comfortable motor roads follow the most picturesque seacoast on the Atlantic and lead through the heart of Maine's forests.

Burwash typifies everything that is Maine. lakes, mountains, streams and forests—you can find them all in Burwash. Added to this is easy accessibility, congenial neighbors and a general atmosphere that one finds only in the ideal summer retreat.

Burwash, a tract of land comprising five thousand acres, is in Washington County, southeastern Maine, and lies between the towns of Wesley and Northfield, two and one-half miles south of Wesley and three miles north of Northfield. Machias, a thriving city on the Atlantic Ocean and a railroad terminus connecting with all points in the United States and Canada, is only eleven miles from the summer colony over a splendid highway. This highway borders Burwash and connects directly with St. Stephen, New Brunswick, Canada, which is nineteen miles distant, or a drive of about forty-five minutes by automobile. Calais, Eastport, Campobello and other famous resorts are but a few miles from Burwash.

Boasting of a heavy growth of wood and timber over the greater part of the property, with two lakes, one two miles long and half a mile wide, and with a mountain rising over land that is from fifty to more than two hundred feet high, Burwash is the summer paradise supreme. Fresh water trout and perch beckon the angler. Moose, deer and partridge call the hunter, while the lover of boating, canoeing and swimming will find in the two fine lakes on the property bodies of crystal water ideal for the purpose. Hundreds of springs, bubbling the purest of soft water, springs that never freeze, are on Burwash. And

PRE-DEVELOPMENT PLAN OF
BURWASH

LOCATED IN SOUTHEAST PART
 OF THE TOWN OF WESLEY
 WASHINGTON COUNTY, MAINE

James Ashe, Sole Owner

EACH SQUARE ON ABOVE PLAN REPRESENTS A FIVE-ACRE ESTATE.
 DRAWN EXACTLY TO SCALE.

PRE-DEVELOPMENT PLAN OF
 BURWASH
 LOCATED IN SOUTHEAST PART
 OF THE TOWN OF WESLEY
 WASHINGTON COUNTY, MAINE
 James Ashe, Sole Owner

[Plan of lots]

Northfield

Each Square on Above Plan Represents a Five-Acre Estate.
 Drawn Exactly to Scale.

to crown all is the general reaction of the retreat—a reaction that rests the nerves and freshens the mind and body.

Burwash has been divided into five-acre estates. These estates are low in price and the terms are such as to meet the approval of any person who loves the great out-of-doors.

Governor Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, told James Ashe, owner of Burwash, that he knew well the region where Burwash is located and could recommend it highly.

In a letter received by James Ashe from Harrie B. Coe, general secretary and manager of the State of Maine Publicity Bureau, Mr. Coe wrote: "I am quite familiar with the section of the state which you will develop and have felt for some time that it was untried territory with as great possibilities as any other section of the state."

JAMES ASHE
Sole Owner of Burwash

OFFICES IN PRINCIPAL CITIES

to crown all is the general reaction of the retreat a reaction that rests the nerves and freshens the mind and body.

Burwash has been divided into five-acre estates. These estates are low in price and the terms are such as to meet the approval of any person who loves the great out-of-doors.

Governor Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, told James Ashe, owner of Burwash, that he knew well the region where Burwash is located and could recommend it highly.

In a letter received by James Ashe from Harrie B. Coe, general secretary and manager of the State of Maine Publicity Bureau, Mr. Coe wrote: "I am quite familiar with the section of the state which you will develop and have felt for some time that it was untried territory with as great possibilities as any other section of the state."

JAMES ASHE

Sole Owner of Burwash

OFFICES IN PRINCIPAL CITIES