

DORMITORY ROOM CARE

Air rooms and beds while at breakfast.

Mattresses should be turned weekly, alternating end to end and side to side.

Aim to keep all belongings in an orderly fashion:

“A place for everything and everything in its place.”

An orderly closet has:

Clothes hung on hangers.

Soiled clothes in laundry bags.

Shoes neatly arranged — off the floor if possible.

A clean floor.

An orderly dresser top has a clean scarf and not too many articles upon it.

Desk top and bookcase should look orderly and be well dusted.

Waste baskets should be emptied before they become full.

Arrange neatly and compactly such articles as must be stored under beds.

The room should present a picture of orderliness and cleanliness at all times.

Dormitory Room Care

Air rooms and beds while at breakfast.

Mattresses should be turned weekly, alternating end to end and side to side.

Aim to keep all belongings in an orderly fashion:

“A place for everything and everything in its place.”

An orderly closet has:

Clothes hung on hangers.

Soiled clothes in laundry bags.

Shoes neatly arranged -- off the floor if possible.

A clean floor.

An orderly dresser top has a clean scarf and not too many articles upon it.

Desk top and bookcase should look orderly and be well dusted.

Waste baskets should be emptied before they become full.

Arrange nearly and compactly such articles as must be stored under beds.

The room should present a picture of orderliness and cleanliness at all times.

Contributed to Maine Memory Network by University of Maine
Farmington
MMN # 79292

Date: ca. 1945

Description: A room care card issued to University of Maine students which outlines the expectations for proper behavior in the dormitories.